ASIAN PACIFIC INSTITUTE
ON GENDER-BASED VIOLENCE

What happens when the laws that are supposed to protect survivors of domestic violence and sexual assault become turned against them? Survivors can be criminalized for reacting in self-defense, participating in criminal activity under their abusers' coercion, or for failing to protect their children from witnessing or being impacted by violence in the home. Survivors of color, who struggle with mental health or substance dependency, or who otherwise don't fold the "perfect victim" mold are disproportionately incarcerated. In this workshop, API-GBV was joined by Hyejin Shim and Neda Said of Survived & Punished, who guided participants through a discussion of the criminalization of survivors, and how advocates can support criminalized survivors.

National Immigration Forum Applauds the Introduction of the Afghan Adjustment Act

August 9, 2022

Washington, D.C. — Today, Democrats and Republicans in both the House and Senate announced the introduction of the Afghan Adjustment Act. The announcement, which came days ahead of the first anniversary of the fall of Kabul and the subsequent U.S. military withdrawal from Afghanistan, followed extensive bipartisan discussions over the future of Afghan evacuees.

The Afghan Adjustment Act would give tens of thousands of Afghan allies already in the U.S. a clear pathway to permanent residence. While many Afghan evacuees have been able to temporarily reside in the U.S. via humanitarian parole and/or Temporary Protected Status, most lack a viable path to permanent legal status and face uncertain futures in the U.S.

“The introduction of the Afghan Adjustment Act demonstrates that significant progress is being made to provide Afghan allies, other evacuees, and their families the permanency and stability they deserve,” said Laurence Benenson, Vice President of Policy and Advocacy at the National Immigration Forum. “Congress must move swiftly in passing the Afghan Adjustment Act.” ★
